City Jan. 22, 1860; secured employment as clerk but in the panic of the following year his employers failed, October, 1861, and he was without a position; employed by W. & J. Sloane at a small salary, and devoted himself to the interests of the firm with such efficiency that he became a partner after four years' service, and afterward vice-pres. of the corporation, W. & J. Sloane. Retired from active business in 1898, but remains a trustee of the corporation; also a director of the Nairn Linoleum Co. Retired from business to devote himself to country life and is now pres. of Briarcliff Realty Co., owning more than 5,000 acres of land; Briarcliff Lodge Ass'n, owning 200 acres of land, the Briarcliff Lodge; and Briarcliff Farms, owning 3,000 acres of land and 1000 cows, all of which he founded; also found Briarcliff Manor Village of which Walter W. Law, Jr., is now president. Built Briarcliff Church. Republican. Congregationalist. At Briarcliff dairy farming has been developed along the most progressive lines, with stock selected with the greatest care, and milk produced under the most hygienic conditions; the farm also produces American Beauty roses in great perfection and profusion. While adhering to the highest ideals in this extensive enterprise, and sparing no outlay in maintaining them, it has also been attended by gratifying financial success. Gives his personal attention to the enterprises and to the social welfare of the people of Briarcliff Manor; and the story of Mr. Law and his achievements there has been told most interestingly in an article by Andrew Carnegie in The Outlook of May 16, 1908, entitled "The Laird of Briarcliff Manor." Mr. Law's leisure is largely devoted to his library of 7,000 volumes, which he has been collecting for the past forty years. Club: Century (N. Y. City). Address: Briarcliff Manor, N. Y. City.

LESLIE, Mrs. Frank (Baroness de Bazus):
Editor, publisher; b. New Orleans, 1851, of old French Huguenot family, descended from Philip Picot; ed. at home by her father, in French, Spanish, Italian, German and Latin; began writing for publication at age of thirteen, and subsequently married Frank Leslie, the publisher. In 1877 made transcontinental tour, from which grew her work, From Gotham to the Golden Gate; Itza, the Unexplored Regions of Central America; Rents in Our Clothes; Are We All Deceivers?, etc., besides translating from the French, Spanish and Italian, and magazine articles on travel and social topics, poems, etc. On Jan. 10, 1885, Mr. Leslie died, leaving entire establishment $300,000 in debt, and sixteen publications in hands of an assignee. After seventeen different law suits, triumphed over all obstacles, straightened out affairs of the publications (among which was Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper) and made great financial and literary success. About 1902 sold out all her interests, and the name Frank Leslie, which she had legally asumed in 1881 for business purposes, she now abandoned, resuming the family name of the Baroness de Bazus, a French title which was created in the time of Saint Louis, and which has belonged to her ancestors for many generations. MARBLE, Manton:

Editor, author, diplomat; b. Worcester, Mass., Nov. 16, 1831; s. Joel and Nancy Chapin (Coes) Marble, she a descendant of Thaddeus Chapin and Lucy Whitney, he a descendant of Samuel and Freegrace

Marble, after whom Marble Ridge was named, near Andover, Mass., and son of Deacon Solomon Marble (at Bunker Hill, Saratoga, Yorktown) and Jerusha Greenwood, both of Milbury, Mass.; ed. chiefly by father; grad. Albany Acad., 1853; Univ. of Rochester, 1855. Seven years' staff service with Boston and N. Y. journals (under William Cullen Bryant, 1858-60; Journey to Red River and Beyond, 1859; N. Y. World, under Mr. Spalding, 1860-62); then, 1862-76, prop'r and editor N. Y. World, through War and Reconstruction periods. Chm'n Exec. Com. Nat. Dem. Com., 1864; gave early publicity in U. S. to writings of Herbert Spencer on maintenance of Justice as chief, if not sole, legitimate function of Gov't wielding coercive power of whole body of citizens; in opposition to Peace-Democrats, held war unavoidable for resisting disruption of Union and subversion of its Constitution; opposed exorbitances of executive power, usurpings of ungranted power as likewise its subversion; opposed warping Custom House taxation, touching all, into profit machines for a few; opposed income-taxing, greenbacks (as ever-injurious substitute for money), negro suffrage, impeachment of President Johnson; urged and supported negotiations that led to Washington Treaty, Geneva Arbitration, Alabama Award; began assault against Tweed Ring, which finally purged city gov't for a season and elected Samuel J. Tilden gov. of N. Y.; wrote Syracuse, N. Y., Dem. State Platform, 1874, and the St. Louis Nat. Dem. Platform, 1876, upon which Mr. Tilden stood for governorship of N. Y. and presidency of U. S.; most of the platform of 1884 upon which Mr. Cleveland stood for the presidency, and a pamphlet, 1878, disclosing that for the Electoral Commission Law Mr. Tilden was not responsible. Special envoy sent by President Cleveland, 1885, to the gov'ts of Great Britain, France, Germany, and after conferences with Prince Bismarck, with MM. Freycinet, Carnot and Cernuschi, the classic authority upon internat. bimetallism, and with Mr. Goschen, Lord Iddesleigh and Mr. Gladstone, ascertained and advised the President that resumption of free bimetallic coinage by any European power was conditioned sine qua non upon British co-operation which neither Tory nor Liberal ministries were prepared for, as Mr. Gladstone would prefer the Indian mints' closure to continuing their free coinage of silver; and that our own U. S. Treasury purchases of silver should cease. Author: A Letter to Abraham Lincoln, 1861; The Presidential Counts, 1877; A Secret Chapter of Political History, 1878; Memoir of Alex. G. Mercer, D.D., prefixed to his Bible Characters, 1885; and Notes of An Outlook on Life, collected from his MSS., 1899. Life mem. A. A. A. S. and of Am. Acad. Polit. and Social Science, Am. Y. Hosp.; also mem. B'd Medical Directors Loomis Sanatorium. Has specialized on diseases of the nose, throat and ear, in which branches he is recognized as a world-wide authority; was throat surgeon at Vanderbilt Clinic, and Bellevue Hosp. Clinic, 1890-93; laryngologist Met. Coll. of Music since 1890; in private practice since 1886, now having probably the largest individual practice in N. Y. City, his patients averaging in number between 50 and 60 per day, he having treated 88,000 in the last 10 years. Has always taken deep interest in musical matters, having been tenor singer in the Trinity Coll. Glee Club, afterward first tenor at St. Thomas Ch., N. Y. City, and later sang in church choirs in Hartford, Conn., Brooklyn, and N. Y. City. This interest in music led him to an exhaustive study of the voice and the vocal organs, and he established a principle of hollow space resonances which has gained wide and authoritative recognition as the nearest to perfect theory of voice production; was the first practical advocate of a regular standard for tone of voice production, by which any voice can be definitely measured and classified; many of the most prominent singers of the country are among his patients. In August, 1908, Mr. Oscar Hammerstein, the well-known impresario, while looking about for a physician of well-known prominence and pronounced ability as a throat specialist, selected Dr. Miller (who is also a high class singer and musician), to pass upon the throats and vocal chords of his artists. The N. Y. American of Aug. 30, 1908, in a whole page article, quoted Mr. Hammerstein as saying: "My innovation means a revolution in voice-training methods that ultimately will benefit every young singer in this country. Through the direct advantage gained by applicants for positions in my chorus, other singers all over the country will benefit by personal knowledge of the anatomical and scientific aspect of their instrument and their art." Dr. Miller, in a paper written in 1906, for the Frankel Festschrift, and read before the Am. Laryngological, Rhinological and Otological Soc., at Kansas City, proposed a new theory of the origin of nodules from personal observation of 234 cases, and the first scientific investigations conducted at the New Surgical Laboratory, Coll. Phys. and Surg., were a series of original experiments, which confirmed his theory. He collaborated with Dr. James P. McEvoy and Prof. J. E. Weeks on A Compend on Nose, Throat and Ear Diseases, 1892, and numerous other papers on the Voice and the Vocal Organs. He has also made valuable investigations upon the care of consumption, especially in connection with hygienic and dietetic treatment, the thorough sterilization of milk and has published various papers pertaining to these subjects. He is a member of the American Med. Ass'n; Academy of Medicine, N. Y. County and State Med. Societies, Am. Laryngological, Rhinological and Otological Soc., Pen and Ink Soc. Mason, 32° Scottish Rite, Knight Templar, Mecca Temple, Mystic Shrine, Azim Grotto, Veiled Prophets. Mem. New England Soc. in N. Y. City. Clubs: Hospital Graduates, The Players, Mendelssohn Glee, N. Y. Yacht, Masonic. Address: 22 W. 31st St., N. Y. City.

Coll., 1892; m. 1st, Lucy Kimball (died 1871); 2d, 1873, Anna Livingston, d. W. L. Street and g.-d. of Gen. Randolph S. Street, and descendant of the Livingstons, Van Rensselaers and Schuylers, old Manhattan families; five children by first wife, three are now living: Edith Livingston (m. April 30, 1900, William Corcoran Eustis), Helen (m. London, Oct., 1901, the Comte de Perigord, now Duc De Valencery), Alice (m. Feb., 1902, Winthrop Rutherford). On completion of academy course, engaged in mercantile business; when 20 years old began business at Hanover, N. H., continuing about five years; in 1849 became connected with house of James M. Beebe & Co., Boston, as clerk; joined the firm later as partner, and after about five years came to N. Y. City and established the wholesale dry goods commission house of Morton & Grinnell; in 1863, went into the banking business, establishing the house of Morton, Bliss & Co., and in connection with Sir John Rose, who was late financial minister of Canada, founded house of Morton, Rose & Co., London. Made careful study of the financial transactions of the U. S. Gov't, and his firm was one of the syndicates which successfully assisted in funding the national debt and made the resumption of specie payments possible at a fixed rate. The London firm were the first fiscal agents of the U. S. Gov't, 1873-84, and were again appt'd, 1889. In the negotiation of the U. S. bonds, and the payment of the Geneva Award of $15,500,000, and the Halifax Fishery Award of $5,500,000, his firm was associated with Messrs. Rothschilds and other London bankers. Firm of Morton, Bliss & Co. was dissolved Oct. 1, 1899, and was succeeded by the Morton Trust Co., of which he has ever since been pres.; also continued at head of the London house of Morton, Rose & Co., until its dissolution. Appt'd, 1878, by President Hayes, honorary comm'r of U. S. to the Paris Exp'n; elected, 1878 and 1880, to 46th and 47th Congresses, serving from 1879 to 1883, and was influential in financial legislation; strongly opposed the unlimited coinage of silver in 1879; was also deeply interested in international politics and the relations of the U. S. with other countries, and was mem. of the Foreign Affairs Com. of the 46th Congress. Was informally tendered Republican nomination for vice-president at the Chicago Convention, 1880, but declined it, preferring to remain in Congress; subsequently given choice between a place in the Cabinet as secretary of State, secretary of the Navy or the French mission, and chose the latter, serving 1881-85; while in that position was able to secure the removal of restrictions upon the importation of American pork to France, and the recognition of American corporations in that country; he drove the first rivet in the Bartholdi Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World, and had the honor of accepting it for his Government; represented U. S. at Paris Electrical Exp'n, and at the Submarine Cable Convention; nominated for vice-president of the U. S. by Republican Party, 1888, at the Chicago Convention, and elected on presidential ticket with Benjamin Harrison, serving 1889-93, and discharging with ability and in an impartial manner the duties of presiding officer of the Senate.
